PRESENTATION

The Committee for the Psychoanalysis of Couples and Families (COFAP) Psychoanalytic Perspectives of Families and Couples of the International Psychoanalytical Association (IPA) is happy to present this event four years after the First International Congress held in Buenos Aires in 2013, dedicated to diagnosis, and two years after the Second International Congress held in Madrid in 2015, dedicated to interpretation. The theme suggested for this year is Variations in the setting: psychoanalysis of couples and families.

Naples was chosen as location by the Italian Society of Family and Couple Psychoanalysis (PCF) to recall an event held in Naples twenty years ago organized by Anna Nicolò and Gemma Trapanese that collected those who were at the time pioneers of family and couple psychoanalysis.

Psychoanalysis, born as a talking cure within the dual relationship between an analyst and an adult patient, introduced relevant variations to the setting with the treatment of children, adolescents and groups. Starting from the Controversial Discussions and the pioneering work of Anna Freud, Melanie Klein, Donald Winnicott, play, seen as a representative of unconscious dream work, rightfully entered the analytical room, not only in the analysis of children but also of adults, giving new value to words, to the analytical relationship, and to analytical space and time. Group analysis, introduced by Bion in the analytical domain, highlighted the inter and intra-psychic modes of expression of the unconscious, beyond the boundaries of the individual. The theory of the analytical field and that of links suggested a new way of reading the setting and opened to new forms of listening to the unconscious. In addition, the treatment of serious patients and adolescents in breakdown required psychic listening not only of individuals but also of their environment, represented by their families, and opened the way to reflections on the transgenerational.

The materials that will be presented to this Congress intend to delve deeper in the comparison between settings with an individual patient, a couple, a family, a group and an institution. Through the illustration of these settings we will search for the therapeutic factors, the tools available to analysts, their toolkits, the ability to work in different contexts. Couple and family psychoanalysis has reached a degree of theoretical and clinical maturity that we wish to share with a wider audience of colleagues in psychoanalysis and psychotherapy, because we think that with some forms of psychopathology, such as psychosis, multi-problematic families or distress in infancy, psychoanalysis reaches better clinical results thanks to different settings and can make wider use its discoveries.

On the other hand, what Winnicott hoped for was efficient psychoanalysis available where the patients need it.

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Saturday 16th of February in the afternoon it will be 12 workshops in parallel, with three speakers each, one discussion coordinator and a Chair.

All lectures will be read in the language of the presenter. The version in the other language will be projected on screen or distributed. During the discussion, if necessary, we will benefit from the help of a translator.

The duration of each workshop will be 90 minutes. Each speaker will have 20 minutes, and 30 minutes of discussion with the floor.

Conferences will be held in small rooms (with an audience of 15 to 25 people).

Rules for presenting an abstract:

Who wants to participate as presenter in a workshop must send an abstract before December, 1, 2018 to psicoanaliscoppiafamiglia.pcf@gmail.com, to the attention of Marcello Valeri.

The mail must contain Name, Surname, e-mail address and telephone number.

The abstract will not have to exceed the 150 words (850 characters, spaces excluded), Word, Times New Roman, 12, single space, written in English or Italian or French. It will be titled.

The abstract will be assessed by a Scientific Commission and you will receive an answer within the 6th of January 2019.

Arguments:

The argument can be one of the suggested (see below) but we appreciate also others that are related to your particular research in this field.

The arguments suggested:

- Infantile psychosis and family setting
- The setting with the parental couple
- The setting with conjugal couple: the sex of the therapist has to do with transference and countertransference?
- The setting with adolescents and their families
- The setting with polysymptomatic families
- Variation on individual and couple settings
- The multifamiliar setting
- Psychoanalytic setting with couple and families in Institution
- Setting with couple with a premature baby
- Setting with the family of an anorexic patient
- Families with psychosomatic disorders
- Setting with couples in separation
